

"In this book we invite students of leadership from all faiths, cultures, and experiences to take another look at the leadership genius of Jesus. . . ." —From the Introduction

PRAISE FOR
Leadership by the Book

"Leadership by the Book is an intriguing story with caring friendships and important leadership principles. It weaves together the best vision of servant leadership I have ever read."

—DON SODERQUIST, senior vice chairman, Wal-Mart Stores, Inc.

"Leadership by the Book offers profound and meaningful insight into how spiritual principles can transform leadership at every level. The characters and the challenges that leaders face are real—as are the truths in this book. Read it, and think again about where your life is headed."

—LAURIE BETH JONES, author of Jesus, CEO and The Path

"At last! An accessible, doable, genuinely useful book for faith-based business leaders. Here is a surefooted guide for how to do what our deepest beliefs encourage us to do, not just in church but in normal life. Three master teachers show us that Christianity is not a professional specialty or a separate career. Their message is easy to digest but profound in its implications. Buy this book now!"

—BOB BUFORD, author of Halftime: Changing Your Game Plan from Success to Significance; founder of Leadership Network

"After working diligently and aggressively on a major cultural change over the past seven years, I am convinced that the idea of servant leadership is critically important to the human organization. Organizational charts in the current configuration will be obsolete as effective leadership serves in an entirely different capacity. I think the concepts outlined in Leadership by the Book give hope and in many ways a road map to the evolution that must occur."

—JAMES E. DESPAIN, vice president and general manager,
Track-Type Tractors Division, Caterpillar, Inc.

"A must-read for the leader of the twenty-first century, especially for one who wants to know and understand the 'heart' of a leader."

—C.W. POLLARD, chairman, ServiceMaster
